Maybe you don't want to invest in a piece of hardware for your baby to use with your computer. If you're watching closely, the standard keyboard will do just fine. Giggles' software, part of a growing industry known as "lapware," will lock down all the grown-up functions of the computer to create a safe environment for banging on the keyboard. The system teaches cause and effect between what happens when you press a key or move the mouse and what happens onscreen.
